

Simon Forrest is Principal of the College of St Hild & St Bede and a Professor of Sociology at Durham University. He is a trustee of AVERT (The AIDS Education and Research Trust). He has previously been Director of the Sex Education Forum, a Research Fellow in the Department of Sexually Transmitted Diseases at University College London, and a senior lecturer at St George's Hospital Medical School. He has also been a visiting Fellow at the Institute of Education in the University of London and Newcastle University.

Simon has been involved in a wide range of research and evaluation projects with a focus on young people, sex, sexualities and gender. He has worked in higher education for around thirty years, and before that, in health promotion, youth work and teaching in secondary and further education.

Simon has a special interest in gender, sex and sexuality and young people, and undertaking small-scale evaluations of work with boys, young men and young fathers. He has written, taught and advised policy-makers and practitioners on these issues.

You find links to some of his work here:

<https://www.dur.ac.uk/directory/profile/?id=6826>